TAPESCRIPT

Britain's Got Talent

This show is the biggest and most successful British TV reality show. It's very popular in Europe and in the top 50 most watched YouTube channels in the world. Anybody of any age can enter the competition. There are singers, dancers, musicians and there have even been dogs on the show. Usually the people are very good, but sometimes they aren't. Sometimes they are really funny. The programme is on TV every week. The winner of the year sings, dances or plays their music in front of the Royal Family and receives a large cash prize.

TeenStar

TeenStar isn't an international or European competition – it's a national singing competition for teenagers. The competition is for singers, song-writers and groups who are aged 19 or under. It isn't for dancers and actors, and adults cannot enter. There are thousands of pounds of prizes, and the winner gets £5,000. The competitions are in different towns and cities and sometimes the final is in London.

Open Mic UK

Open Mic UK is a national music competition which thousands of people enter each year. The competition is looking for the UK's best singers, but not song-writers or musicians. Anyone can enter the competition, and there are five different age groups. The idea is to find a person or a group who want to become famous when they are older
